

Colavita Exposes Democrats Nonsense in Eastchester Supervisor’s Race

STATEMENT FROM SUPERVISOR COLAVITA

SHAME ON DEMOCRAT CANDIDATE FOR SUPERVISOR FOR ATTEMPTING TO USE UNRELATED ACTIONS OF NONRESIDENTS FOR POLITICAL GAIN

I do not now, nor have I ever, condoned any form of violence or threats of violence for any reason.

By Dan Murphy

In the Town of Eastchester, Supervisor Tony Colavita is running for reelection in Nov. for a two-year term. This year, Colavita faces an opponent: Democrat Cat Sayles.

Sayles is part of a group of Westchester Democrats running against the remaining Republican officeholders in the county, including Colavita, Mt. Pleasant Supervisor Carl Fulgenzi, and County Legislators James Nolan and Margaret Cunzio.

Westchester Democrats are hoping that the new election law, which puts the race for Governor at the top of the ticket for this year’s election, will help them sweep these local elections.

Last month, a disturbing incident took place in Eastchester during a political event for Sayles. An individual entered the facility where the event was

Yorktown residents Jessica and Tom Gorman

Rep. Lawler is fighting to allow Congress to override these policies

By Dan Murphy

Local residents are fearful that a new law passed by Gov. Kathy Hochul could have devastating consequences similar to the tragic death of 20-year-old Yorktown Heights resident Sheridan Gorman.

Gorman, a student at Loyola University, was shot and killed on March 19, 2026, while visiting friends in Chicago. Jose Medina, a Venezuelan national

County BOL Honors Westchester Residents For Hispanic Heritage Month

The Westchester County Board of Legislators celebrated Hispanic American Heritage Month on Monday evening with a ceremony honoring Nelson Gisbert, a Yonkers entrepreneur and trailblazer in Hispanic business leadership, and Brenda Maeda, a cosmetology business founder, educator, and youth mentor.

Chairman Vedat Gashi (D–New Castle, Ossining, Somers, Yorktown), who convened the ceremony, said, “The stories of Nelson Gisbert and Brenda Maeda remind us that Westchester County’s strength comes from the people who choose to build their lives, families, and businesses here. It is an honor to celebrate their achievements as well as their resilience, hard work, and contributions to our community during Hispanic Heritage Month.”

Legislator José I. Alvarado (D–Yonkers) said, “It is my pleasure to honor Mr. Nelson Gisbert, owner of Nelson Services Systems in the City of Yonkers. His journey from Havana, Cuba to the shores of the United States exemplifies the sacrifices some are willing to make in pursuit of the American dream. His contributions to the fabric of our great county go far beyond the boundaries of entrepreneurial success, expanding to all facets of everyday life, including education and community service. I am honored to recognize Mr. Gisbert for his accomplishments as the Westchester County Board of Legislators celebrates Hispanic American Heritage Month 2026.”

Legislator Nancy E. Barr (D–Harrison, Port Chester, Rye Brook) said, “Brenda Maeda is the quintessential honoree for our Hispanic American Heritage Celebration. Brenda came to this country from Guatemala when she was 15, speaking very little English. By the time she was 28 she owned her own hair salon business and was employing members of her family and her community. Since then she has mentored numerous young women, raised money for countless charities, and currently splits her time between her family, her salon in Harrison, and a part-time job teaching high school students in the Bronx. She exemplifies why immigrants are an integral part of our community, our economy, and the continuation of the American dream.”

Two Polls in NY-17 Give us the Same Result: Lawler v Conley is a Dead Heat!

A new Emerson College Polling/PIX11 News survey of New York’s 17th congressional district finds a close race between incumbent Republican Mike Lawler and Democrat Cait Conley: 48% support Conley, 46% Lawler, and 7% are undecided. The poll of likely voters has a margin of error of 4.9%, putting the race between Lawler and Conley as a DEAD HEAT.

7% of those polled are still undecided.

There is an enthusiasm gap among NY-17 voters: those “very excited” to participate in the November election break for Conley by seven points, while those “somewhat excited” break for Lawler by 12 points, 52% to 40%.

Lawler’s favorability is split: 45% have a favorable view of the Congressman and 46% an unfavorable view. Conley has a higher share of neutral voters: 44% have a favorable view of her, 35% unfavorable, and 22% neutral.

22% of voters do not have an opinion of Conley. This gives both Conley and the Lawler campaign, 4 weeks to influence voters.

Voters say the economy is the top issue facing the state at 31%, followed by “threats to democracy” at 23%, immigration at 13%, and housing affordability at 12%. A McLaughlin & Associates survey of 400 likely voters puts Lawler at 50 percent, ahead by 12 points with unaffiliated voters, and finds he is the only candidate in the race with a net-positive image.

Another poll, a new survey of New York’s 17th Congressional District shows Congressman Mike Lawler leading Democrat Cait Conley 50% to 47%. The poll, conducted by McLaughlin & Associates on behalf of Lawler for Congress, surveyed 400 likely general election voters from September 28 to 30 and has a margin of error of plus or minus 4.9%.

Lawler holds 92 percent of Republicans, wins unaffiliated and third-party voters 52% to 40%, and takes 20% of registered Democrats, in a sample where registered Democrats outnumber Republicans 44% to 31%, a number he has held in every election.

Lawler is the only candidate in the race with a net-positive image, 50% favorable to 46% unfavorable. Conley is underwater at 42% favorable to 48% unfavorable. Among unaffiliated voters, she is at 36% favorable to 52% unfavorable.

“Mike Lawler is in pole position with a month to go. Cait Conley is underwater with the district as a whole, worse with independents, and that will only get worse as more people learn about her shady pay-for-play, no-show job with AI defense contractors. People in the Hudson Valley don’t want to be represented by a carpetbagger who doesn’t own a home here, doesn’t pay taxes here, and wants to raise their taxes by nearly $4,000,” said Lawler for Congress campaign manager Ciro Riccardi.

Benny Cai

Tarrytown & Greenburgh PD Arrest Man for $29K Elder Fraud

Members of the Tarrytown Police Department Detective Division, working in conjunction with the Greenburgh Drug and Alcohol Task Force, arrested BENNY CAI, 06/29/19834630 Robinson Lane 2F Flushing NY following an investigation into an organized fraud scheme that targeted an elderly resident of the Village of Tarrytown.

BENNY CAI was arrested on Thursday, September 24, 2026, in the parking lot of the Walgreens, located at 162 Wildey Street Tarrytown, after investigators determined that the defendant was involved in the collection of a second fraudulent payment from the victim.

The investigation began after an elderly Tarrytown resident was contacted by text message as part of a sophisticated scam designed to impersonate Apple's financial department. The victim received a message with the heading "Apple Payment Warning," falsely advising that an unauthorized Apple transaction had been made and instructing the victim to contact a purported Apple Financial Department at a provided telephone number.

After contacting the number, the victim was deceived into allowing the scammers to obtain remote access to the victim's computer. The perpetrators then manipulated information displayed on the computer to make it appear that Apple had inadvertently deposited approximately $50,000 into the victim's account.

The scammers subsequently claimed that the money had been deposited in error and demanded that the victim return the funds in cash. Two separate cash payments were arranged as part of the scheme.

On Wednesday, September 23, 2026, the victim turned over approximately $29,000 in cash to an unidentified individual on Main Street in Tarrytown.

Tarrytown Detectives, working with members of the Greenburgh Drug and Alcohol Task Force, continued the investigation and coordinated surveillance surrounding the second scheduled payment. On Thursday, September 24, 2026, investigators stopped BENNY CAI in the Walgreens parking lot, at 162 Wildey Street, after the defendant had received the second payment from the victim.

During the subsequent investigation, BENNY CAI was also found to be in possession of a quantity of cocaine. Detectives determined that BENNY CAI is allegedly part of an organized group involved in targeting elderly victims through sophisticated financial fraud schemes. The investigation remains ongoing, and detectives are working to identify other individuals involved in the scheme.

BENNY CAI was charged with:
Grand Larceny in the Fourth Degree
Scheme to Defraud in the First Degree
Criminal Possession of a Controlled Substance in the Fifth Degree

The defendant was processed and arraigned in Tarrytown Village Court on September 25, 2026. CAI was released on his own recognizance (ROR'd) with a return date of Wednesday, September 30, 2026.

The Tarrytown Police Department reminds residents, particularly senior citizens and their families, that legitimate technology companies and financial institutions will not demand that customers return money in cash or instruct them to provide remote access to their computers in response to an unsolicited warning.

Residents who receive unexpected messages or telephone calls claiming that their computer, bank account, or financial information has been compromised are encouraged to stop communication with the caller, avoid providing remote access or financial information, and contact their local police department or the company through an independently verified telephone number.

County Executive Jenkins Appoints First Hispanic & First Woman to County Public Safety Leadership

Nilda Hofmann

Westchester County Executive Ken Jenkins has announced two appointments made by Public Safety Commissioner Terrance Raynor to strengthen the leadership team of the Westchester County Department of Public Safety. Raynor has named Nilda Hofmann as First Deputy Commissioner and John O'Rourke as Deputy Commissioner. Hofmann's appointment marks a historic milestone for the Department: she is the first Hispanic and the first woman to serve in a leadership position.

Jenkins said: “Public safety is one of the most fundamental responsibilities we have in County government, and these appointments bring two extraordinarily experienced professionals to our leadership team. Nilda Hofmann has spent decades leading complex law enforcement operations and building relationships between police and the communities they serve. John O’Rourke has devoted his career to investigating and prosecuting some of the most serious and complex crimes in Westchester and New York City. Their experience, judgment and commitment to public service will be tremendous assets to Westchester County.”

Raynor said: “These appointments add tremendous experience to the Department’s leadership team. I look forward to working with both of them as we continue to strengthen public safety across the County.”

Nilda Hofmann, First Deputy Commissioner: Hofmann spent 30 years with the New York City Police Department, rising through the ranks from Police Officer to Bureau Chief. Her leadership roles included serving as Chief of Transportation and Chief of Community Affairs, where she oversaw thousands of uniformed and civilian personnel and worked extensively with community organizations, government agencies and other stakeholders. She also served in a number of command positions throughout her NYPD career, including as Commanding Officer of the 25th and 52nd Precincts.

We need someone in Congress with ethics, empathy, intelligence, a commitment to the rule of law, and the ability to think for themselves.

Cait Conley has spent her life developing and demonstrating those skills.

At a time when families are struggling with costs and democracy is under attack, we need a leader in CD17 with the skills that good public service demands.

Cait grew up in a middle class family that understood the value of the dollar. She understands the concerns of families who are trying to afford healthcare, housing, utilities, and a secure future for their children. Cait comes from a family of honest, hard-working people who raised a daughter with a strong work ethic and true caring for the needs of others.

Cait's career also demonstrates strong, ethical leadership and high standards skills that were honed at West Point, Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

In the army, Cait first served abroad to protect us, and later she served to protect us at home. Those were positions where integrity, accountability, sound judgment, and respect for the truth are not optional. Our lives and our democracy depended on these skills.

America must elect members of Congress who hold these critical attributes. Cait has worked in combat zones, federal agencies, and the White House Situation Room, where problems cannot be solved through slogans or personal attacks. She understands that foreign relationships must be honored, that alliances require commitment, and that policy must be guided by public servants who always follow the law. Our government can not be managed by a handful of billionaires or lobbyists with private interests driving their decisions.

Cait recognizes that people need to be treated with dignity and that every resident deserves a voice regardless of party, background, identity, or zip code. Her commitment to protecting healthcare, lowering costs, strengthening education, safeguarding democracy, avoiding ‘forever’ wars, and opposing cuts to research reflects a focus on the lives of Hudson Valley families. It’s time to move away from radical, personal, and baseless claims and vendettas, and return to common sense, proven programs.

We need a representative in Congress who listens and responds with action, leads ethically, thinks strategically, and works to unite rather than divide. Cait Conley has the character, experience, and leadership skills our district requires. And she knows that effective representation does not mean blindly following a flawed president. Early Voting begins on Saturday, October 24. That's when I'll be voting for Cait Conley for Congress. Mark A. Lieberman, Yorktown ment in conjunction with the Greenburgh Drug and Alcohol Task Force, has arrested Hoascalín Marmolejos (10/08/1993), of Bronx, New York, following an investigation into an organized fraud scheme targeting an elderly resident the Village of Irvington.

On September 29, 2026, at approximately 4:30 p.m., members of the Irvington Police Department and the Greenburgh Drug and Alcohol Task Force arrested Marmolejos in the area of 120 North Broadway after an investigation determined that he was allegedly involved in the collection of fraudulent payments from the victim.

The investigation began after an elderly Irvington resident contacted the Irvington Police Department and reported receiving telephone calls from an individual claiming to be affiliated with the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). The caller falsely advised the victim that their bank account had been compromised.

The victim was instructed to withdraw and provide cash as part of a purported effort to identify and apprehend the individuals responsible for the alleged banking issue. Over the course of several days, the victim provided approximately $20,000 in cash to an unidentified male.

Irvington detectives subsequently learned that the victim remained in contact with the individuals involved and that an additional cash pickup could be arranged. Detectives from the Irvington Police Department, working in conjunction with members of the Greenburgh Drug and Alcohol Task Force, continued the investigation and coordinated surveillance in the area of the next scheduled collection.

On September 29 th , officers observed Marmolejos arrive at the designated location and allegedly collect the fraudulent payment. Officers subsequently took Marmolejos into custody.

Hoascalin Marmolejos was charged with Attempted Grand Larceny in the Third Degree, a Class E felony. Additional charges are pending as the investigation continues.

Former Peekskill Mayor Asks- What is Going on at the Kiley Center?

I'm reaching out about an issue in Peekskill that I believe deserves public attention. For nearly two years, a Peekskill community leader has tried to use the Kiley Center, run by the Peekskill Housing Authority, for free indoor soccer leagues open to all families. Simon Guaman helped make Peekskill a sister city with Cuenca, Ecuador, and leads our annual Hispanic Heritage celebrations. Here is what he got:

- Winter 2024: Denied, told he was not a Housing Authority resident.
- A Bohlmann Towers resident then requested the space on his behalf. That resident was told construction would begin in summer 2025, so no one could use the building.
- September 2026: I'm not aware of any construction. Follow-up emails have gone unanswered. The last one that included me was sent July 7th.

It's one thing to tell residents no. It's another to ignore them, or to give them reasons that don't hold up. That is how communities lose trust, and how people begin to feel shut out and unwelcome in their own city.

This matters to me personally. I grew up in Peekskill. My family held repasses at the Kiley Center. I hosted movie nights and glow-in-the-dark dodgeball for the neighborhood kids. It was a community center, and the Housing Authority Board has since redefined it as a resident center. Today, it seems to serve no one. The kids Simon wants to serve don't have time to wait on a board that won't answer its email.

I'm a former Mayor of Peekskill, and I'm asking one simple question on behalf of the community: what is going on at the Kiley Center?
Andre' Rainey, Former Mayor, City of Peekskill

Letter to the Editor: The Content of their Character, not Party Loyalty... should Determine your Vote.

Early voting for Congress in CD17 begins on Oct. 24th thru Nov. 1st with in-person voting on Nov. 3rd. Only one candidate will prevail. Of course, your vote should ideally support that candidate who best represents not only your economic interests, but your personal values as well. That is why the choice in CD17 deserves particular attention. So regardless of past Party voting preferences, I encourage you to vote for Cait Conley, a dynamic young woman whose life has been defined by service to her Country. As your representative she has pledged to be laser focused on the needs of hard-working middle-class Americans and bring much needed change and honesty to a failed Congress. Cait is offering serious responses to problems that Americans confront every day: a stagnating good paying job market, personal security, widening inequality, unaffordable housing, rising food and energy costs, privatization of Social Security, Medicare cutbacks and a health-care system that too often fails the very people it's supposed to serve.. As a former Dir. of Counter Terrorism, she brings expertise to the problems of unchecked AI, the explosion of massive and noisy data centers that deplete water tables and drive-up energy costs...and an immigration system that should distinguish between those who came here seeking the American dream and those that abuse it. Here in CD17, a massive $5 million dollars in advertising filled with lies and smears about her positions, is being fire-hosed at Cait by self-interested and powerful political operatives. They, together with tech moguls and the likes of Elon Musk, have a large stake in ensuring Mike Lawler's continuance as Trump's enabler and preserving a system that continues to enrich them. Cait's insistence of People over Politics is not just a slogan but an approach that introduces fairness and empathy where greed now prevails. Once elected, she will legislate ethical guard rails to stem corruption, protect our environment and redirect needed dollars to CD17 constituents most in need. She will work for us! This election is about more than one congressional seat. It is about whose interest's government will protect: the working families who Cait stands ready to fight for, or the wealthy and powerful that Lawler represents, to ensure their mutual self-enrichment. Judge the person. Judge the record. Judge the character. Vote for Change. Vote Cait Conley.

Westchester County Clerk’s Property Alert Service

Now Available: Sign Up to Protect Your Home

Do you know what is going on with your land records? Now, thanks to a new program launched by Westchester County Clerk Tom Roach, you won’t have to wonder anymore. The new Westchester County Clerk Property Alert Service is a free program designed to help property owners stay informed about documents recorded with the Westchester County Clerk’s Office. The Property Alert Service allows residents to register their name or property address, and receive an email notification when a deed or mortgage matching that information is recorded with the County Clerk’s Office.

Westchester County Executive Ken Jenkins said: “I applaud County Clerk Roach on this effort. Property owners should have an easy way to know when activity involving their name or property appears in our land records, and this free service puts another tool directly in the hands of residents. We are now giving residents timely information and an opportunity to review recorded documents and take action if something doesn’t look right.”

Roach said: “This is just the latest project to modernize the County Clerk’s Office. We want to be as timely and efficient as possible and this is one way to make things easier for residents. We have been working with the Westchester County Department of Information Technology since January 2026 to develop the new system, and we are thrilled to now launch it.”

How the Property Alert Service Works:

Register Your Property: Property owners can voluntarily register the name or address they would like to monitor through the secure WCCPAS platform.

Receive Email Alerts: When a document is recorded with the County Clerk’s Office that matches the registered name or address, the user will receive an email notification.

Review the Activity: The notification allows residents to review the recorded information and determine whether any additional action is necessary. The service is provided free of charge and is intended to give residents an additional way to stay informed about activity associated with their property records.

Residents can register for the Westchester County Clerk Property Alert Service today at: <https://pas.westchesterclerk.com/>.

Two Former USPS Employees from Westchester Charged In Connection With Scheme To Steal 200 Gift Cards Out Of Mail

United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, Jamie McDonald announced that PIAN PIAN WONG-TAM, a former United States Postal Service (“USPS”) Mail Processing Clerk in White Plains, New York, and WILLIAM WONG, a former USPS Mail Clerk in Millwood, New York, were presented today before Chief U.S. Magistrate Judge Judith C. McCarthy on charges that they engaged in a scheme and conspiracy in which WONG-TAM removed mail entrusted to her by USPS, stole gift cards and other items out of that mail, and then, together with WONG, used those gift cards and other items for their own personal gain. “The charges against the defendants reflect this Office’s and our law enforcement partners’ continued commitment to ensuring the integrity of the U.S. postal system,” said U.S. Attorney Jamie McDonald. “As alleged, Pian Pian Wong-Tam stole more than 200 gift cards out of mail entrusted to her for processing, and then, together with William Wong, used those gift cards for their own benefit, abusing their positions of trust and victimizing hundreds of people in the process. The complaint against Wong-Tam and Wong should send a clear message that stealing from the mail entrusted to USPS for delivery is a serious federal offense that will not be tolerated.”

According to the Complaint: Until July 24, 2026, WONG-TAM was working as a Mail Processing Clerk at the USPS White Plains Processing & Distribution Center (“P&DC”) in White Plains, New York, while WONG was working as a Mail Clerk at a post office in Millwood, New York. After receiving multiple customer complaints about mail that had been processed through the P&DC being delivered damaged, with expected gift cards missing, USPS-OIG’s investigation revealed that, from April 2025 to July 24, 2026, WONG-TAM took advantage of her position of trust at the P&DC to steal, among other things, gift cards from the mail she was responsible for processing. WONG-TAM then shared the gift cards she stole with WONG and, together, they used those gift cards at a variety of businesses in multiple states for their own personal benefit. All told, WONG-TAM and WONG’s scheme resulted in the theft of no less than 200 gift cards, ranging in value from $25 to $500 each. WONG-TAM, 59, of New York, New York, and WONG, 57, of New York, New York, are each charged with one count of conspiracy to steal and unlawfully possess mail, which carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison; one count of unlawful possession of mail, which carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison; one count of conspiracy to commit access device fraud, which carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison; and two counts of access device fraud, which each carry a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison. WONG-TAM is also charged with one count of theft of mail by a Postal Service officer or employee, which carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison. The maximum potential sentences in this case are prescribed by Congress and provided here for informational purposes only, as any sentencing of the defendants will be determined by a judge.

Mr. McDonald praised the outstanding investigative work of the Northeast Area Field Office of the USPS-OIG.

This case is being handled by the Office’s White Plains Unit. Assistant U.S. Attorney Timothy Deal is in charge of the prosecution.

The charges contained in the Complaint are merely accusations, and the defendants are presumed innocent unless and until proven guilty.

Following the keynote, students broke into groups to discuss their personal aspirations for peace and human rights and to discuss ways to achieve change. School districts from Westchester participating included Blind Brook/Rye, Byram Hills, Chappaqua, Croton-Harmon, Katonah-Lewisboro, North Salem, Ossining, Peekskill, Port Chester and Tarrytown. Also attending were students from Pearl River in Rockland County and Newburgh in Orange County.

Isabella Bencosme, a junior from the Tarrytowns School District, said, “I think my biggest takeaway from Kerry Kennedy, and her really meaningful words, is to have initiative and have courage because we are the drivers of change.”

Manhattanville President Frank D. Sanchez, Ph.D., welcomed the participants and connected the summit’s purpose to the university’s mission. He described the audience as future leaders and encouraged them to make the world better through their work.

“I think what gets me so excited about hosting this summit is that every single day that legacy unfolds at this institution. Our mission at Manhattanville University is to educate ethical and socially responsible leaders in the global community. And today we have 61, right here: Sixty-one future leaders who will hopefully make a difference in the world and make the world a better place.”

The $6.5 million figure is not arbitrary. Last year, the County Legislature appropriated $6.5 million, approved by County Executive Byrne, for a proposed taxpayer rebate program. However, to date, the Legislature has been unable to advance forward a legal mechanism to give those dollars back to residents in the form of rebate checks. Rather than asking taxpayers to continue waiting for a rebate program that has not materialized, Byrne is proposing providing the same amount of relief through a direct reduction in the County property-tax levy.

“The Legislature identified $6.5 million that they believed should go back to the taxpayers, and I agree with them,” said County Executive Kevin Byrne. “The problem is that nearly a year later, there still isn’t a legal mechanism in place to send those rebate checks. So rather than make people wait, we’re proposing something we know we can do because of the strong financial position we find ourselves in: collect $6.5 million less in property taxes next year.”

The $6.5 million reduction would be by far the largest property-tax levy cut in Putnam County history, eclipsing the previous $1 million tax cut adopted as part of the 2026 County Budget. The new proposed levy is also about $8 million less than the tax levy inherited when Byrne first took office as County Executive.

“Families are getting squeezed from every direction; utilities, groceries, housing, insurance and just about everything else costs more,” Byrne said. “County government cannot control all of those costs, but we can control how much we ask our taxpayers to send us. Putnam County is in a strong financial position, and I believe the responsible thing to do is leave more of that money where it belongs: in the pockets of the people who earned it.”

The proposed property-tax cut continues an affordability agenda Byrne has pursued since taking office.

During Byrne’s tenure, Putnam County has already delivered more than $10 million in tax relief through previous property-tax reductions and targeted sales-tax relief, in addition to savings provided through the County’s temporary gas-tax suspension which is reflected in the 2027 budget as well. The 2026 budget included what was then the largest property-tax levy reduction in Putnam’s history and brought the County tax rate down to $2.39, its lowest level in nearly two decades.

With this new budget proposal, Byrne's cumulative tax relief would surpass $23 million over four budgets through property-tax levy reductions and targeted sales-tax cuts.

“When you cut a tax once, people save money once. When you consistently reduce the tax burden year after year, those savings begin to add up for families,” Byrne said. “This isn’t about one budget or one headline. We’ve made affordability a priority from the beginning, and this budget takes that commitment further than ever before.”

The Executive Budget also accounts for Byrne’s proposal to make Putnam County’s popular sales-tax exemption on qualifying clothing and footwear purchases under $110 permanent. The exemption, first proposed by Byrne in 2023 and effective since March 2024, eliminates Putnam County’s local sales tax on qualifying purchases whether made in stores or online. The current exemption is scheduled to expire in March 2027.

“Clothes and shoes aren’t luxuries,” Byrne said. “Whether it’s work boots, a winter coat or sneakers for your kids, these are things families have to buy. We’ve seen this tax cut work, and there’s no reason Putnam County should go back to taxing those necessities.”

The 2027 Executive Budget provides for continued growth of the Putnam County Early Learning Center, which provides preschool and specialized services closer to home for Putnam children and families; continued funding for Putnam County's Community Paramedicine program, the first countywide program of its kind in New York State; and the planned expansion of Putnam On-Demand, the County's successful microtransit program, to additional communities.

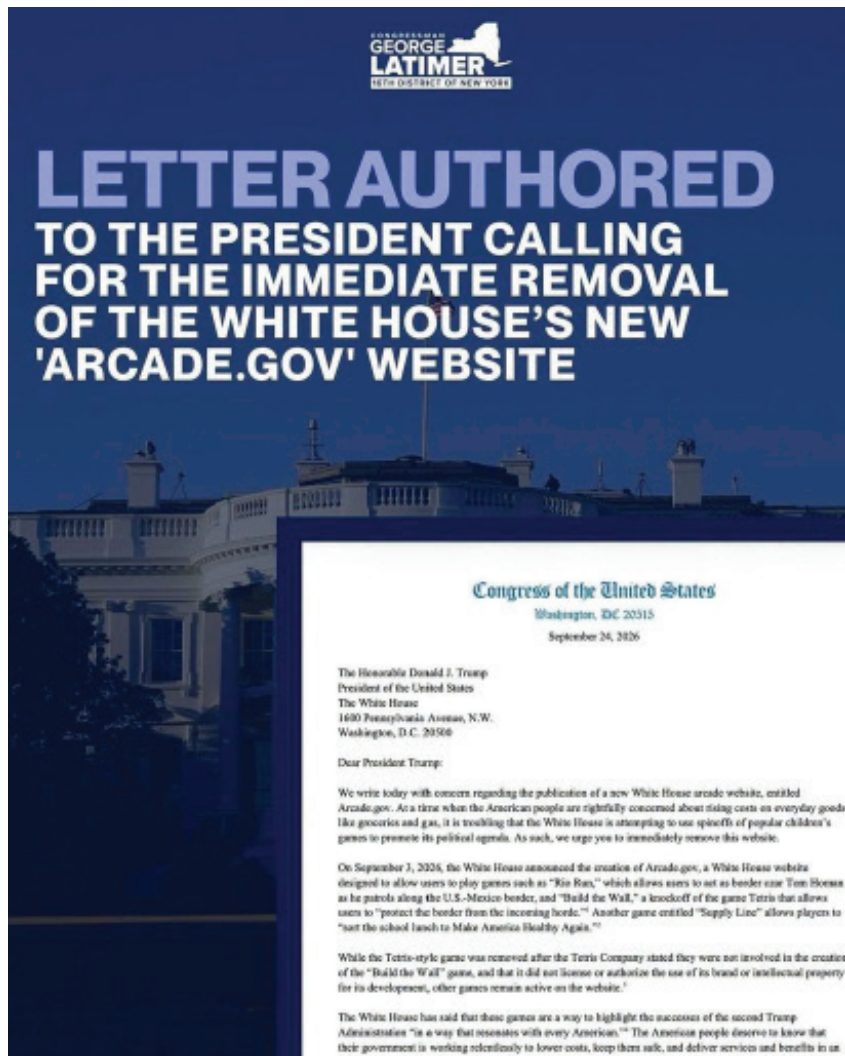

The budget also continues Putnam County's commitment to sharing sales-tax revenue with its six towns and three villages. Sales tax revenue will continue to be shared to Putnam's local municipalities in 2027, continuing the revenue-sharing partnership established last year.

“We’ve rejected the idea that taxpayers have to choose between lower taxes and quality services,” Byrne said. “We’re cutting the levy, continuing to invest in our infrastructure, sharing revenue with our towns and villages, and expanding essential programs that are producing real results. Responsible budgeting is what makes that possible.”

Byrne will formally present his 2027 Executive Budget and provide additional details and initiatives during his annual Budget Address before the Putnam County Legislature on Monday, October 5 at 7 p.m. at the Putnam County Historic Courthouse, 40 Gleneida Avenue in Carmel. All are welcome to attend, and the presentation will also be livestreamed by the County.

“The budget we’re submitting today reflects the same principles that have guided our administration from the beginning: affordability, accountability and accessibility,” Byrne said.

Byrne, a republican running for reelection, was denied the Conservative Party line in an unfortunate example of political shennanigans that voters are growing tired of.

Congressman George Latimer recently authored a letter to President Trump, calling on the White House to remove an arcade of strange games.

Rep. Latimer writes, “We write today with concern regarding the publication of a new White House arcade website, entitled Arcade.gov. At a time when the American people are rightfully concerned about rising costs on everyday goods like groceries and gas, it is troubling that the White House is attempting to use spinoffs of popular children’s games to promote its political agenda. As such, we urge you to immediately remove this website.

“On September 3, 2026, the White House announced the creation of Arcade.gov, a White House website designed to allow users to play games such as “Rio Run,” which allows users to act as border czar Tom Homan as he patrols along the U.S.-Mexico border, and “Build the Wall,” a knockoff of the game Tetris that allows users to “protect the border from the incoming horde.”

“Another game entitled “Supply Line” allows players to “sort the school lunch to Make America Healthy Again.”

“While the Tetris-style game was removed after the Tetris Company stated they were not involved in the creation of the “Build the Wall” game, and that it did not license or authorize the use of its brand or intellectual property for its development, other games remain active on the website.

“The White House has said that these games are a way to highlight the successes of the second Trump Administration “in a way that resonates with every American.

“The American people deserve to know that their government is working relentlessly to lower costs, keep them safe, and deliver services and benefits,” writes Rep. Latimer.

mately 5,600 employees assigned to the School Safety Division, Crime Prevention Division, Youth Strategies Division and Community Outreach Division. Her work included developing partnerships with community-based and faith-based organizations, creating youth engagement strategies and overseeing initiatives designed to strengthen relationships between law enforcement and New York City communities. She later served as Chief of Transportation, overseeing more than 4,000 uniformed and civilian personnel responsible for traffic safety and enforcement throughout New York City.

Hofmann also brings valuable experience working in the Hudson Valley and with institutions that serve Westchester residents. Her time at Dutchess Community College and in a hospital setting provided her with firsthand experience navigating the public safety needs of both an academic community and a complex healthcare environment.

Hofmann said: “I am honored to join the Westchester County Department of Public Safety. I am grateful to County Executive Ken Jenkins and Commissioner Terrance Raynor for their confidence in me. I look forward to working with the Department’s dedicated men and women, County leadership, and our community partners to build on the Department’s outstanding work and continue serving Westchester County residents.”

John O'Rourke, Deputy Commissioner :O'Rourke joins the Department of Public Safety from the Westchester County District Attorney's Office, where he currently serves as Chief of the Investigations Division. In that role, he supervises criminal investigations involving hate crimes, public integrity, major economic crimes, complex computer crimes and gang-related violence, while also serving as lead trial counsel in complex cases and homicides.

O'Rourke has served in the Westchester County District Attorney's Office for more than two decades, holding numerous senior leadership positions including Counsel and Deputy Division Chief of Trials and Investigations; Bureau Chief of Gangs, Firearms and Narcotics; Bureau Chief of the Major Case Bureau; and Deputy Chief of the Homicide Bureau.

Since 2015, O'Rourke has also served as a Special Assistant United States Attorney with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of New York, working in conjunction with the FBI and federal prosecutors on gang and gang-violence cases.

Before joining the Westchester County District Attorney's Office in 2002, O'Rourke served as an Assistant District Attorney in the New York County District Attorney's Office, where he prosecuted homicides and other violent felonies and was appointed to the Firearms Trafficking Unit and Asian Gang Unit.

O'Rourke said: "I am honored and excited to take on this new role with the Department of Public safety. Throughout my career, I have worked alongside exceptional law enforcement professionals to confront violent crime, dismantle criminal organizations and hold those who threaten the safety of our communities accountable. I look forward to bringing that experience to the Department of Public Safety and building on the strong work that is already underway. My goal is to strengthen our partnerships across law-enforcement and our communities, and to use my experience to help advance public safety throughout Westchester County. I am grateful for the opportunity to serve in this new capacity and look forward to working alongside the dedicated professionals of the Department."

being held, started shouting at some people in attendance, and eventually threw a cinderblock at a small group of people- thankfully, nobody was hurt.

After the incident, Sayles and other Democrats in attendance met with the Eastchester police, who explained that the individual was known to police as an emotionally disturbed person who lived in New Rochelle and had been arrested before.

Upon receiving that information, Sayles decided not to pursue any charges.

But several days later, Sayles and the Eastchester democrats made an irresponsible decision; after deciding not to press charges, they used the incident as a political tool in the race for Eastchester Supervisor. The Sayles campaign issued a statement implying the incident was part of an ongoing pattern of behavior meant to harass and intimidate her in her bid for supervisor.

That statement reads, “Over the past several months, my campaign has experienced an escalating pattern of harassment and intimidation. It started with online trolling, then moved to threatening messages that incited violence, specifically death to and cleansing of democrats in our town. Volunteers have been intimidated at public events. Lawn signs began disappearing. Bags of dog waste have been left under signs still standing.

“This past Friday night, at a campaign fundraiser, a man came to the event screaming obscenities at the people there, including a child, and threw a cinder-block toward the group. Thankfully, no one was hurt.

“We filed a police report, and the Eastchester Police Department is on top of it. I’ll be honest, it’s a really tough moment in the campaign. But let me be equally clear: I will not back down. I will not be intimidated.

“No one should be afraid to attend a political event, volunteer for a campaign, sign a petition, or put up a lawn sign for their candidate of choice. A culture of intimidation has been cultivated in Eastchester for too long. Back in March, when we were collecting signatures to qualify for the ballot, many residents expressed reluctance to sign for fear of retaliation. People stated, “he will know.” We don’t need to accept fear-mongering and bullying anymore. It is a big part of why I chose to run in the first place.

"It's time to choose a different Eastchester: one rooted in dignity, care for our neighbors, and civility when we disagree. Please join us," stated Sales.

Colavtia responded with the following statement: SHAME ON DEMOCRAT CANDIDATE FOR SUPERVISOR FOR ATTEMPTING TO USE UNRELATED ACTIONS OF NONRESIDENTS FOR POLITICAL GAIN

"I do not now, nor have I ever, condoned any form of violence or threats of violence for any reason.

“Several weeks ago, a person who has not lived in Eastchester for more than a decade, who lives out of state, has never worked for the town, has no connection to my administration nor my campaign, made a foolish statement about “death to Democrats.” My opponents campaign immediately prepared flyers and distributed them throughout the town and made a statement trying to exploit this random act for political purposes.

“Last week, an individual who does not reside in Eastchester and has no connection to this town, my administration, or campaign, threw a block outside of an event for my opponent. This young person is a known Emotionally Disturbed Person (EDP) who has been arrested several times for violent acts and vandalism. At the time my opponent filed a police report with the Eastchester Police Department, she was clearly advised as to his serious disabilities and his past random conduct. My opponent chose not to press charges.

“However, AFTER being advised of his condition and AFTER not pressing charges, she posted on Facebook and portrayed his actions as bullying by me and my supporters. Nothing could be further from the truth. Once again, I have always unequivocally condemned threats, intimidation, and political violence from anyone. No one in my campaign has ever done anything like that. However, exploiting the actions of a vulnerable individual and falsely connecting them to my supporters or administration for political advantage is irresponsible and reprehensible. Culture of intimidation - I think not!

“Eastchester deserves better and an apology, not misleading false accusations. So much for transparency,” stated Colavita.

Residents concerns over the handling of the incident by the Sales campaign focuses on the fact that four days after speaking to the Eastchester Police and deciding not to press charges did she then decide to issue a statement blaming Colavita's campaign for two incidents that he had nothing to do with.

Win on the merits and focus on the issues that you wish to present to the voters.

who entered the U.S. illegally and was previously released after a shoplifting arrest in Chicago, has been charged with her murder. At a recent House Judiciary subcommittee hearing on Capitol Hill, Jessica Gorman, Sheridan’s mother, told lawmakers a 10-second phone call from local police to ICE could have saved her daughter’s life.

Despite similar tragedies across the nation, Gov. Kathy Hochul and her Democrat colleagues in Albany recently passed a new law – “Local Cops, Local Crimes Act” – that prohibits local police from cooperating with federal immigration authorities and strips state law enforcement funding from any department that refuses to comply.

“The sanctuary policies being pushed by Kathy Hochul and Democrats killed our daughter,” said Jessica.

The shocking death of Sheridan Gorman has attracted national attention and generated great scrutiny of current sanctuary and anti-ICE policies. These policies have also emerged as critical issues in New York’s District 17 congressional race between two-time Republican incumbent Mike Lawler and his Democrat opponent Cait Conley.

In the first televised District 17 debate this week on News 12, Jessica and her husband Tom asked the candidates if they supported New York’s new law and if they would support a bill to allow the federal government to override states on these matters. Lawler voiced strong opposition to Hochul’s new law and pledged to back any legislation that would end sanctuary jurisdictions in the United States. Conley did not express support for such a bill and her campaign website says she would revoke 287(g) agreements, which allows ICE to deputize local law enforcement officers to enforce federal civil immigration laws.

“After a tragedy like this, you’d think Cait Conley and Democrats in Albany would ask what went wrong and how we can prevent it from happening again,” said Lawler. “We should all remember why ICE has to be out there at all: Joe Biden let millions of illegal immigrants into this country without adequate vetting. You cannot throw open the border, tie the hands of law enforcement and then act shocked at the consequences.

“No one here is attacking legal immigration. My wife is a legal immigrant; I’ve been through this process with her. The problem is that our state has chosen, as official policy, to shield people who broke our laws and then committed crimes against New Yorkers. Let police officers do the jobs we trust them to do. In Congress, I will keep fighting to end sanctuary policies nationwide.”

In her remarks to lawmakers on Capitol Hill on June 30, Jessica Gorman urged them to fix sanctuary and anti-ICE laws.

“I challenge you all to sit down with me, take my hand, look me in the eye, and then explain to me — because I just don’t understand — explain why people here illegally matter more than your American citizens,” said Jennifer. “Explain why sanctuary policies matter more than my Sheridan’s life. I don’t understand why it’s only the Republican side that cares about our American children.”
